

College News

School of Counseling Dissertation Defense

School of Counseling doctoral student Marisa Cargill defended her dissertation on 2/12/19. The focus was a notable national study on social media addiction and its impact on anxiety, fear of missing out (FOMO), and interpersonal problems. Significant results were found, with broad implications for mental health professionals and persons who use social media in general.